Gettysburg Battlefield National Cemetery

To commemorate the fallen and missing American heroes of three wars, the U.S. government maintains 14 permanent cemeteries as well as 11 monuments on foreign soil.

Pictured here are some of these shrines dedicated to soldiers, sailors, marines and airmen who lost their lives during World War 1, World War 2 and Korea. The cemeteries, where approximately 39 per cent of our war dead are buried and our missing servicemen are listed, are under the jurisdiction of the U.S. Battle Monuments Commission. Each memorial is faithfully supervised and tended, each contains a chapel and is open to visitors the year round.

These solemn memorials to the men who paid so costly a sacrifice are a constant reminder of the price we paid—and still pay—for peace.

Youth Beat

THE NATIONAL REPORT ON WHAT'S HAPPENING

HOW TO ESCAPE FROM HAVING A DULL VACATION:

If you're afraid you'll be bored this summer, go back to school—to one of the Outward Bound Schools that started here five years ago. High point of the Outward Bound School's curriculum is your getting plunked down alone in an uninhabited wilderness, staunchly armed with fishline and hook, knife, eight matches, sleeping bag and two quarts of water. No one asks you to get an A in this course—just survive so they can pick you up three days and nights later. Five of these rugged summer schools are ready to "educate" you—in the mountains of Colorado, North Carolina, Oregon, the wild north forests of Minnesota and on Hurricane Island off the rocky coast of Maine. Their nonsissy kind of education evolved from techniques invented in Britain during World War II to condition young seamen going out to risk torpedoing. To go to these schools you've got to be at least 16, pay around $400 tuition (half the students—drawn from all social groups—are on scholarships), and be willing to outdo yourself... in fighting through search and rescue, fire control, mountain climbing, boat handling, lifesaving and survival training. About 1,500 stern-stuff students will attend Outward Bound courses this summer, extending from June through early September... And including, in the Minnesota woods school, a special program for girls in which they learn not only what wild berries to chew (while wild mosquitos chew them) but also acquire the deep forest science of killing barehanded and eating—turtles, frogs and snakes.

BOYS ARE BOYER AND GIRLS GIRLIER—IT'S TRUE
Back in March YOUTH BEAT reported that science had now definitely determined that boys and girls are different... That, although IQs run the same, boys out-think girls in studies like science and math, girls usually out-verbalize boys... and, while boys tend to be more creative and independent, girls are more attentive and conscientious. Now, Stanford University has provided fuller data confirming this new news. Reason for boys being like boys and girls being like girls, it has found out, is—that right after birth, hormonal changes act on the brain, setting male and female circuit patterns for thinking, reacting. Females (anyway, among rats, the subjects of this experiment) have a genetic pattern protecting against disease, infection, vision defects... while males have a higher rate of alcoholism. But society tends to value maleness highly—for example, tomboys are acceptable, sissies aren't. Scientific conclusion about what's needed for this modern world is "men who are capable of showing the more 'feminine' traits of warmth and sensitivity to the feelings of others... women who are less conforming, more original and daring, who can think hard and straight."

ON WINGS OF SONG FLY ABROAD: Last year over 2,000 young Americans (high school, junior college and college) toured abroad as semiofficial U.S. "music ambassadors." They strummed, plunked, blew and sang—in glee clubs, jazz and symphony bands and, outstandingly, in the School Band of America whose high school students played to rave notices through most of western Europe. Schools, themselves and groups like the People to People Program and the U. S. State Department organize and help the musical journeymen with funds... or to raise money themselves via school concerts, activity-room juke boxes, etc. This year this traveling of foreign countries with melodious notes will have a sharp fortissimo because of the big bang of Expo 67 across the border in Montreal... 133 of these amateur music youth groups are booked for this international exposition, plus 57 more groups of singers and dancers. So, don't give up playing the piano—it may get you a free ride to Moscow, yet.

Princess Contestant

JUDY ANN RUSSELL

Another entry in the Southwest Arkansas District Poultry Princess contest is Judy Ann "Rusty" Russell, 20, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. McVeety of Texarkana.

Judy is a graduate of Texarkana (Ark.) High School and attends Henderson State College. She is a member of Delta Zeta Sorority, National Honor Society, Associated Women Students, Wesley Club, Young Democrats and Americanism Club. Her hobbies are tennis, skiing, cooking and modeling. She will receive her BSE degree from Henderson in 1968 and would like to teach abroad for at least two years.

Judy is 5'5" tall, weighs 115 pounds, has light brown hair and blue eyes and measures 35-23-35. The Poultry Princess contest will be held in Hammons Stadium on Saturday night, June 10.

JUDITH ANN DOZIER

Another entry in the Southwest Arkansas Poultry Princess contest to be held Saturday, June 10, in Hammons Stadium, is Judith Ann Dozier, 19, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John P. Dozier of Moro.

Judith is 5'7" tall, weighs 123 pounds, has dark brown hair and green eyes and measures 36-24-36. She is a graduate of Marianna High School and attends Henderson State College. She is a member of Delta Zeta Sorority and was first runner-up in the Miss Henderson pageant.

Judith plans to continue her college education and major in elementary education. Her hobbies are cooking, painting, art work and swimming.

Life In Arkansas

By TOMMY YATES
Associated Press Writer
The "Harrisburg 100 Club" has been formed, but it only had 99 members as of its last board meeting Tuesday night. The club isn't one to attract industry to the town or a new turnpike seeking a toll road through Harrisburg. It's designed to do something about teenage drinking and other problems.

Clyde Ford, vice president of the club, said the club has leased a building at the Polkset County Fairgrounds to be used as a teen-age center to give them a place to go and be among themselves.

No drinking or gambling will be allowed at the center when it opens in about two weeks.

"We know this club won't stop teenage drinking in this area," Ford said, "but we hope that it will slow down the drinking."

The club will hire a woman

Share Girls Shun Self-Centered Stars

By DICK KLEINER
Hollywood Correspondent
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

HOLLYWOOD (NEA) Most of Hollywood is self-centered, but not all. There are the Share Girls, for example, living proof that somebody out here thinks of something besides themselves.

Share is an organization which, for the past 15 years, has been doing admirable work with retarded children. The annual Share Boom Town party is a major social event on the Hollywood calendar, and the Share Girls put on a great show. They've raised around $2 million over the years, and they expect to add another $160,000 at this year's affair, May 27.

The girls—some stars, some wives of stars, some wives of business tycoons, some just girls—rehearse for a couple of months every day, all day. Top directors and choreographers contribute their services. The Goldwyn studio lends them a soundstage for rehearsals.

They were rehearsing a parody of "Cabaret." Sixty-five girls are involved, including Janet Leigh, Polly Bergen, Nancy Olson, Pat Crowley, Barbara Rush, Barbara Ruick, Linda Lawson.

Over there is the wife of the May Company, dancing next to the wife of Ohrbach's. There is Jack Benny's daughter, Steve McQueen's wife, Nicky Hilton's wife, Helmut Dantine's wife.

There's a waiting list to join Share. The girls have fun with their show, but they work hard.

Linda Lawson collapsed into a chair, reached underneath for a sack and pulled out her lunch, a peanut butter-and-jelly sandwich.

"I'm getting old," she said. "I used to go home and do things after rehearsal. Now I go home and go to bed."

Linda Lawson is 25 if she's a day.

I am able to report, with some degree of expertise, that motherhood agrees with Anna Maria Alberghetti. Little Alexandra Guzman is now seven months old, a chubby-cheeked, dark-eyed bundle, and momma never looked lovelier. Or happier. Or more doting.

"I never realized being a mother would be this much fun," Anna Maria says. "I play with the baby all morning. It's hard to believe that anything that small can be so much company for me."

Anna Maria Alberghetti isn't one of those rush-into-things girls. She dated Claudio Guzman for seven years before they were married—"I just wasn't ready"—and waited another couple of years to have a baby.

"So many youngsters," says Anna Maria, "figure they should get married and marriage will make them grow to serve as chaperone, but this brought up another question. Would a single woman be able to control any touchy situations which might occur?"

Ford answered the question this way: "If teenagers are not ready to take on the responsibility of policing themselves, then this project will not work."

Some people can't resist padding the company expense account when they go on a trip—business or otherwise—or resist taking advantage of certain company policies and privileges.

But there is a man from West Bridgewater, Mass., who you could say never used abusively his privilege with the New York New Haven & Hartford Railroad.

He is L. W. Chadwick, an engineer 25 years with the railroad, and he used his railroad free pass privilege for the first time about two weeks ago to visit his daughter, Mrs. James Higgins, at Conway.

Chadwick also chalked up another first with the trip. It was the first trip to the sunny South.

Prosecutors Pay Up $3,000

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The state's prosecuting attorney should receive their $3,000 annual increases in salary despite the legislature's failure to appropriate the money the attorney general's office said Wednesday. The ruling said the money can be made available by transferring funds from the constitutional fiscal agencies fund and said the raises must be given.

up. They have some little hang-up and they tell themselves marriage will take care of it, whatever it is. I have news for them—no such thing. You have to grow up first, then get married and have a family. If I had married when I was younger, I would have been divorced in three months."

Before, during and after Alexandra's arrival, Anna Maria was out of show business for a year, all told. She thinks that enforced idleness was good for her career and, particularly, her voice.

"I had been singing for 24 years, since I was six," she says. "I think my voice needed a rest, and so did I. My voice teacher said my voice might change when I had a baby, and it did—I think it's stronger and richer now."

Marriage has changed her, too, from a tense, worrying kind to a more relaxed person. She credits Claudio with that moodamorphosis.

"He's the most even-tempered person I've ever known," she says. "And he told me his secret. I'd done a show and something went wrong and I came home and poured it all out. Then he said, 'Are you finished?' and I said I was and he said, 'All right. Now suppose you had some incurable disease. Then we would have a problem that we had to talk about.'"

TWO OF THE STARS of the Share show, Dolores Naar, left, and Nelle Adams (she's Steve McQueen's wife), go through their paces as they rehearse their annual show.

HELEN HELP US!

by Helen Bottal

DRUGS ON THE CAMPUS, PART 2

Dear Helen: The girl who told her mother anyone could get dope at her school was either bluffing her on how much she knew, or else not telling what she really knew. She'd probably claim up if the authorities questioned her. I know, because I've taken the stuff pushers sell around school.

After seeing your column on dope, I turned "fink" and for the last week I've had threats that would shock you, but I'm still glad I "got out," and asked help.

If you ever get involved in this it's really tough getting out without the pushers giving you a bad time. That's one of the bad parts. The other is—maybe you won't get hung on dope, but you meet the worst kind of people if you're on it. Your morals will drop and soon you will get so mixed up and fed up with life you don't care what happens to you. I thought "Speed" was a harmless stimulant that made me feel high, but how about the "low" times that follow? So you buy more to prevent the low times, and soon you don't know what you're doing. That's what the pusher wants. He gets richer when kids get confused.

I just want to tell today's youth: Don't play with dope! Hippies aren't groovy. They are terrified of life, themselves and their future. —ONE WHO KNOWS

Dear Helen: Fink on the drug pushers? You've gotta be kidding. Who would believe that at our school the gal who distributes the "pot" is the daughter of a big city official? Who, that is, but the other students, who aren't talking! —NOT ON THE REEFS

P.S. Didn't you know the teen code of honor is, "Keep you trap shut."

Dear Not: Why don't you try the drug squad and see what they believe? —H.

P.S. Only fools keep quiet where drug-pushing is concerned. Look kids, this isn't cheating on tests, or puffing a cigarette to the girls washroom. It's crime on the campus, and if you don't tell what you know, you're helping it grow. A misguided sense of "honor," or a shrugged "Who'd believe me?" might eventually lead to a death. —H.

Dear Helen: The income tax bureau gives rewards to people who inform on tax evaders. Maybe if the police paid for information about campus drug sellings, they'd get more action. —THINKER

Dear Thinker: "Fink on a friend for fun and profit?" Surely there's a better way. Like a through school education program on the effects and dangers of illegal drugs... and how that label "non-addictive" can lead a teen into more trouble than he can handle. —H

Dear Helen: Funny thing, I keep hearing "Anybody can get drugs," but when I pin people down, it's always hearsay. I won't they sold the films, they sold one made in 1960 and one in 1965. I could just imagine the audience suddenly wondering who all the old guys were. It seems to me that an organization with the prestige of CBS wouldn't want to make money that way."

In another year it's not going to be necessary to explain who George Carlin is.

But it will probably still be necessary to point him out in a crowd.

George, 29 years old, a native New Yorker, is a very bright comedian. The latter is an obvious fact to anyone who has ever seen him on television or has heard his RCA Victor album, "Take-Offs and Put-Ons."

It won't take much to make his name a household word. It could be that Away We Go will do it. This is the CBS-TV show which will star George and Buddy Greco and will replace Jackie Gleason for the summer. It bows on June 3.

GEORGE CARLIN
'I decided to make a living...'

About George's face: It's perfectly nice, handsome in an unassuming way, and when he's not working, partly hidden behind horn-rimmed glasses. But he looks so unlike a show business personality that he is seldom recognized.

His career began when, as a 3-year-old, he visited his mother's office and danced the Big Apple and imitated Mae West. By elementary school, he was imitating his teachers and the parish priests. When he went on to Cardinal Hayes High School, he hung out with a bunch of guys who were "so clever and quick that you had to throw good lines back at them."

Like father, like daughter, too. George's 4-year-old Kelly has already begun her career getting laughs around the house with the weird faces she does. I don't know where she gets it," he says.

Big But Small Eaters

Ponderous beasts are comparatively light eaters. For instance, a 4,700-pound elephant eats 94 pounds of food a day, or about 20 pounds per 1,000 pounds of body weight; a hippopotamus eats 40 pounds of food daily, or a mere 12 pounds of food per 1,000 pounds of its body weight.

BARBS

By WALTER C. PARKES
The only place it pays to be a loafer is in a bread bakery.
The number of hidden leavies on products we buy taxes the imagination—and don't bet they won't get around to that, next.
stepped, in your bare feet, on a set of jacks some youngster left on the floor.

Except The LORD Build The HOUSE They Labor In Vain That Build It

HAVE FAITH IN GOD

In Memoriam

They have not died in vain... those who paid with their lives the last full measure. Today, Memorial Day, is the day to remember Lexington, Gettysburg, Santiago Bay, Chateau Thierry, Coral Sea, Okinawa, Palermo, Normandy and Korea. We need only to look at the cemeteries of the world to realize the supreme sacrifice that was called for, that we might be secure. It called for the giving of life itself for many a man; for untold sorrow and heartache for friends and loved ones. As they bravely died, so we must bravely live. God has a destiny for us, for America, and only eyes of faith can read that destiny. Each drop of blood spilled from Bunker Hill to Iwo Jima, is a deposit in the bank of our country. One hundred sixty-five million Americans can do no less than dedicate ourselves anew. With our Alabaster Ointment of thankfulness, let us nobly remember those who laid themselves between our country and her foes. This is Memorial Day.

YOU IN THE CHURCH
THE CHURCH IN YOU

Character is a by-product of the church. It is here that young and old alike are showered with benevolent and that family and influence for a better tomorrow and stronger democracy. In the church the membership and the making religious character. Statesmen today declare that the church alone can furnish leadership to handle the affairs of state in those perilous times. Then we with our children should go to the church of our choice on Sunday. You in the church and the church in you form a combination for good. Be a regular churchgoer and a daily Bible reader.

But here, public-spirited, God-worshiping people, are paying each week to insert in this paper a full page, from which they will draw no quick response nor prompt sale. These people are good and humble business men — We owe them our gratitude.

Partner Gives West No Test

By Oswald & James Jacoby

North and South might well have gone to four spades with their cards. South would have no trouble making four spades if he could find East with the king of spades because he would be able to draw trumps and eventually discard one diamond on dummy's fourth club.

Three spades was a far better contract but South did not make that either. East's defense was too good.

West opened the eight of hearts. East looked things over carefully and saw that his partner was sure to hold the king of hearts. West would have led the jack from jack-ten-nine-eight. East also saw that he needed to get the lead twice and played his queen of hearts. Then he led back the eight of diamonds. South played the ten and West the jack. Dummy's ace won the trick and the spade finesse was lost. West put East in with the ace of hearts and the second diamond lead gave West two diamond tricks.

"Beautiful defense," said West. "Glad you didn't put me to the test."

"What test?" asked East. "A real test," said West. "A bad player would have won the first heart with the ace and played the queen immediately. This would have given South his contract automatically. A fair player would have won the first heart with the ace and led the diamond. This play would have given me a chance to underlead my king of hearts when I got in with the king of spades. I'm happy you didn't give me that problem."

Eat Well Out in the Wilds With Freeze-Dried Victuals

ANYONE CONCERNED about weight lugged along on a vacation trip (who isn't?) should be interested in the new freeze-dried foods.

This should be a freeze-dried summer, surely.

In the front on the stage are the instant coffee people who have done an effective job in educating all of us, step-by-step, on the subject of freezing water out of food as a method of preservation.

Backstage, numerous firms have been busily perfecting the process with a good many other items besides coffee. Their interest, in addition to preserving flavor, is in reducing the packing weight of food. Why lug the water when it is there waiting for you?

Campers, vacationists, trail-erites, boaters and all outdoor hobbyists should be interested in these advances. Weight saved means less fuel or muscle power expended.

How does a dinner of pork chops, hashed brown potatoes, applesauce and green beans sound? Or pea soup, chicken stew, fruit dessert and cocoa?

They're available—in packages for two or four persons. Complete-meal selections include varieties of breakfasts, lunches and dinners. This is in addition to numerous single food items, even steaks, in packages.

The weight is about one-tenth that of fresh or canned foods. When ready for use, the proper amount of water is added and the foods are heated in a skillet or oven for a prescribed period.

For years, laboratories have pursued practical freeze-dry techniques. Early products were tested by mountain climbers and on scientific expeditions where saving weight was a necessity.

As the volume of production has increased over the past few years, prices have come down.

The variety has broadened notably for this season. Imagine. There are egg, tuna, crabmeat and chicken salad mixes. Cooked chicken meat and cooked shrimp are offered. The list includes beverages, cereals, soups, vegetables and desserts—even bananas.

No refrigeration is required and additional weight and space is saved with some of the packages which are simple, sealed cellulose bags.

Familiar names are on some of the labels, among them Armour, Wilson, Kellogg and United Fruit; new ones also, including Stow-A-Way with a very complete line.

Sampling some of these delicacies should add to the summer fun this year. In some circumstances they may cut down on vacation work.

Freeze-dried foods can be found in most sporting goods stores and camping departments of other stores. Might check well in advance, though.

YOUR DENTAL HEALTH

'Gagging' is No Problem In Impression-Taking

By WILLIAM LAWRENCE, D.D.S.
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

DEAR DR. LAWRENCE: "I need a partial plate but I gag so much it's impossible to take an impression. Is there a sedative I can take, or could I be given pentothal for a few minutes while the impression is taken?"

ANSWER—Gag reflexes are so pronounced in some patients that they are triggered by the slightest stimulus. Gagging may even begin at home by merely thinking about impression-taking.

But it has never been an insurmountable problem. Sedatives or tranquilizers taken the night prior to and the day of your dental visit are of great help. Of course, they should be taken only on advice of physician or dentist.

There are many technical things that dentists can do to prevent gag reflex from interfering with taking perfect impressions. An impression tray can be specially cut and fitted to the shape of arch, size of mouth and position of teeth. Only those areas to be reproduced by impression need be covered. Gagging areas are avoided.

Gagging areas, hard and soft palates mainly, can be desensitized by swabbing them with topical "novocaine." These topical anesthetics act quickly and sharply reduce feeling in these tissues.

Patients must be told exactly what to expect. Anxiety of patient can be relieved by reassurance that an impression can be taken accurately and quickly without causing them to choke or swallow impression material. Also important are instructions to patient in proper breathing, position of tongue, and making a conscious effort to completely relax.

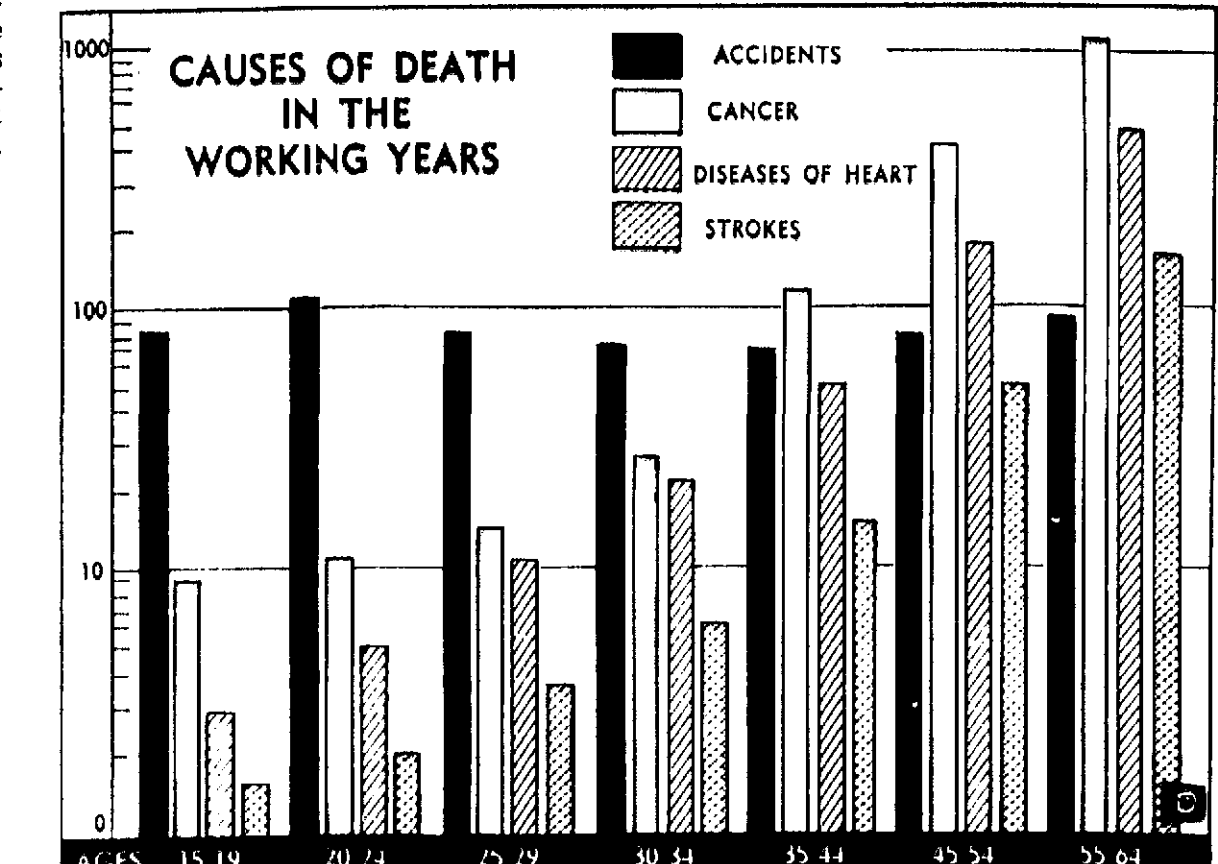

Impression materials are now available that "set" in less than 60 seconds. Some are tasteless and some flavored slightly with spearmint or peppermint. They even look good. Someone said they look "good enough to eat," and "they'd make a delightful looking frosting on a cake."

Sitting patient in an upright position lessens actual and imagined feeling of choking and of impression material running down the throat.

Please send your questions about dental health to Dr. Lawrence in care of this paper. While he cannot answer each letter personally, letters of general interest will be answered in this column.

ALUMINUM BONES for a flying dinosaur are forged at Cleveland, Ohio, for the world's largest aircraft, the massive Air Force C-5A transport. These five main frame parts help shape the giant plane's structural backbone. The top forging, more than 23 feet long and weighing 2,700 lbs., will be the primary support for the forward unit of the 28-wheel landing gear system of the plane, being built by Lockheed-Georgia.

Accidents are a consistently high cause of death among American working men and are on the rise. Average annual death rates per 100,000 during 1963-64 show accidents as the major cause of death in age groups from 15 through 34, according to National Center for Health Statistics records.

Feminine Touch in Baseball

TULSA, Okla. (AP) — Her wedding plans got all mixed up and as a bride she had to learn how to keep a boxscore almost before she could set up house-keeping.

But Lorene Spahn, who says she has lived "a million thrills and quite a few heartbreaks," is now an avid — and expert — fan of baseball in general and of the career of her husband, Warren Spahn, in particular.

Lorene Southard was a year out of high school at Okmulgee, Okla., and working in Tulsa when she met Spahn, then serving in World War II and in Tulsa on leave. She was a stranger to baseball.

Lorene and Warren became engaged while he was in Europe and by April 1946, when he was discharged, she was making plans for a church wedding. But Billy Southworth, who was the new manager of the Boston Braves, intervened.

When he took over the Boston club, Southworth had asked, "Where's that skinny southpaw you had in spring training a couple of years ago?" Informed that he was about to be discharged, Southworth sent out the word for Spahn to report. The wedding plans had to be delayed.

Lorene decided, first, to delay the wedding until the end of the season, but Spahn kept calling, asking her to come to Boston and be married. On Aug. 10 she did, becoming Mrs. Warren Spahn in a simple, private ceremony.

He told her that baseball was going to be her life and maybe she could develop an interest by learning to keep score. Boston sports writers helped her in scoring the game by daily lessons in the press box.

Spahn's career as one of the great left-handed pitchers in baseball is over and he is in his first season as manager of the Tulsa Oilers of the Pacific Coast League.

Nightly, when the Oilers play at home, Mrs. Spahn is in her box seat behind home plate, score card in hand.

"I lived a million thrills and quite a few heartbreaks," she recalls. "When Warren was pitching I might as well have been out on the mound with him. I knew his repertoire of pitches and was always trying to figure out what he would throw next."

"We used to go over the opposing hitters together before each game. Now we go over line-ups."

The Spahns have a ranch near Hartshorne, south of Tulsa.

Their only child, Greg, apparently is ready to carry on where his father left off. Greg, born the day before Spahn and the Braves played in the 1948 World Series, is a third baseman and outfielder on the University of Oklahoma freshman baseball team.

Attaway's Outdoor Notebook

CHARLESTON, S. C. — The hunter looked at his watch, shifted his weight from one cramped leg to another and thought, well, 15 more minutes and the light will be gone entirely. Then back to the lodge and a pleasant hour on the screened porch with a long drink, then dinner and we'll try it again at dawn.

He had forgotten, momentarily, about deer and he thought about the drink and the cramp in his leg and wondered if the tickle working its way down his back was sweat or a tick. The gum stump on which he sat probably was full of chiggers.

And then, as it always happens, the quality of the forest noises shifted perceptibly. A towhee scratched furtively in dry leaves and a gray squirrel was having one last fling through a big hickory somewhere across the road.

The hunter peered through the palmetto screen. To his right, the logging road stretched straightaway for 300 yards before bending up and over a sandy ridge. The deer should cross in that direction. The road to his left was open for less than 60 yards before veering around the trunk of a magnolia and disappearing in an oak thicket.

Nothing came. There was no sign of movement. He checked the road through the scope. Nothing. He sensed something behind him, turned his head slowly and saw a small, dainty doe step silently into the white sand ruts. The hunter froze.

The doe stared at him a long, long moment, but seemed unconcerned. She dropped her head and snatched a few blades of grass from the roadside. Suddenly a fawn joined her. Its spots were still plainly visible.

A second doe appeared. And shortly her fawn. The four deer fed quietly, oblivious to the hunter, who, squatted like a coiled spring, thought any minute now daddy would appear. The buck. The hunter eased his rifle around and looked at the doe through the scope. They were less than 30 yards away.

As quietly as they had come, the deer slipped into the woods across the road. The buck had never shown. The light was gone. The puzzled hunter stood up. As he did, he heard a long, low whistle down the road. It was his companion, who had staked out the road on the other side of the sand ridge.

"See anything?" his companion yelled.

"Two does, two fawns," he yelled back.

His companion came through the haze toward him. Suddenly he stopped, a hundred yards away.

This is the Front Row as Tony Hulman Sounds the Magic Words:

'Derby' Is Larger

By MURRAY OLDERMAN
Sports Editor
Newspaper Enterprise Assn.

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (NEA) — The Indianapolis 500 is the Kentucky Derby with horsepower instead of horses. And maybe everything on a slightly larger scale.

The crowd's bigger — 300,000 will be clustered in, around and over the old brickyard, and that's a realistic estimate because there are 201,000 actual seats. The cars go faster, naturally — powered by those 550-to-600-horsepower engines. The jockeys, of course, are also bigger — A. J. Foyt, for instance, would fit snugly into a pro football uniform.

Even the money for the winner is more — last year, Graham Hill (and associates) pocketed a cool $156,287, two-thirds of it put up by the speedway, the rest in accessory prizes and coolly whistled, "It's almost ridiculous in comparison to what I normally get paid for winning in Europe. The financial rewards of Indianapolis outstrip anything else in motor racing today."

Hill's victory made it two in a row for foreign drivers, the first crackthrough in 50 years by European drivers since Dario Resta won in 1916. Which brought up the inter-field of 33 starters — all except Clark made it in faster time than a year ago. So maybe he isn't a magician."

Clark, almost six miles an hour behind Andretti's speed, wound up in the 16th position, or the sixth row. Hill and Jackie Stewart, another fine British driver, didn't even qualify until absolutely the last testing day as they had trouble with their initial cars and had to use substitute vehicles.

It could have been embarrassing for defending champion Hill, who chirped, when he pulled up a winner at the pits last year, "It's not really much of a challenge. Just a pleasant drive."

Hill could enjoy it because he started far enough back in the field, at 15th position, not to be involved in the spectacular crash on the first turn of the race which wiped out 11 cars and miraculously left only Foyt on the injured list with a cut finger incurred scaling a wire fence.

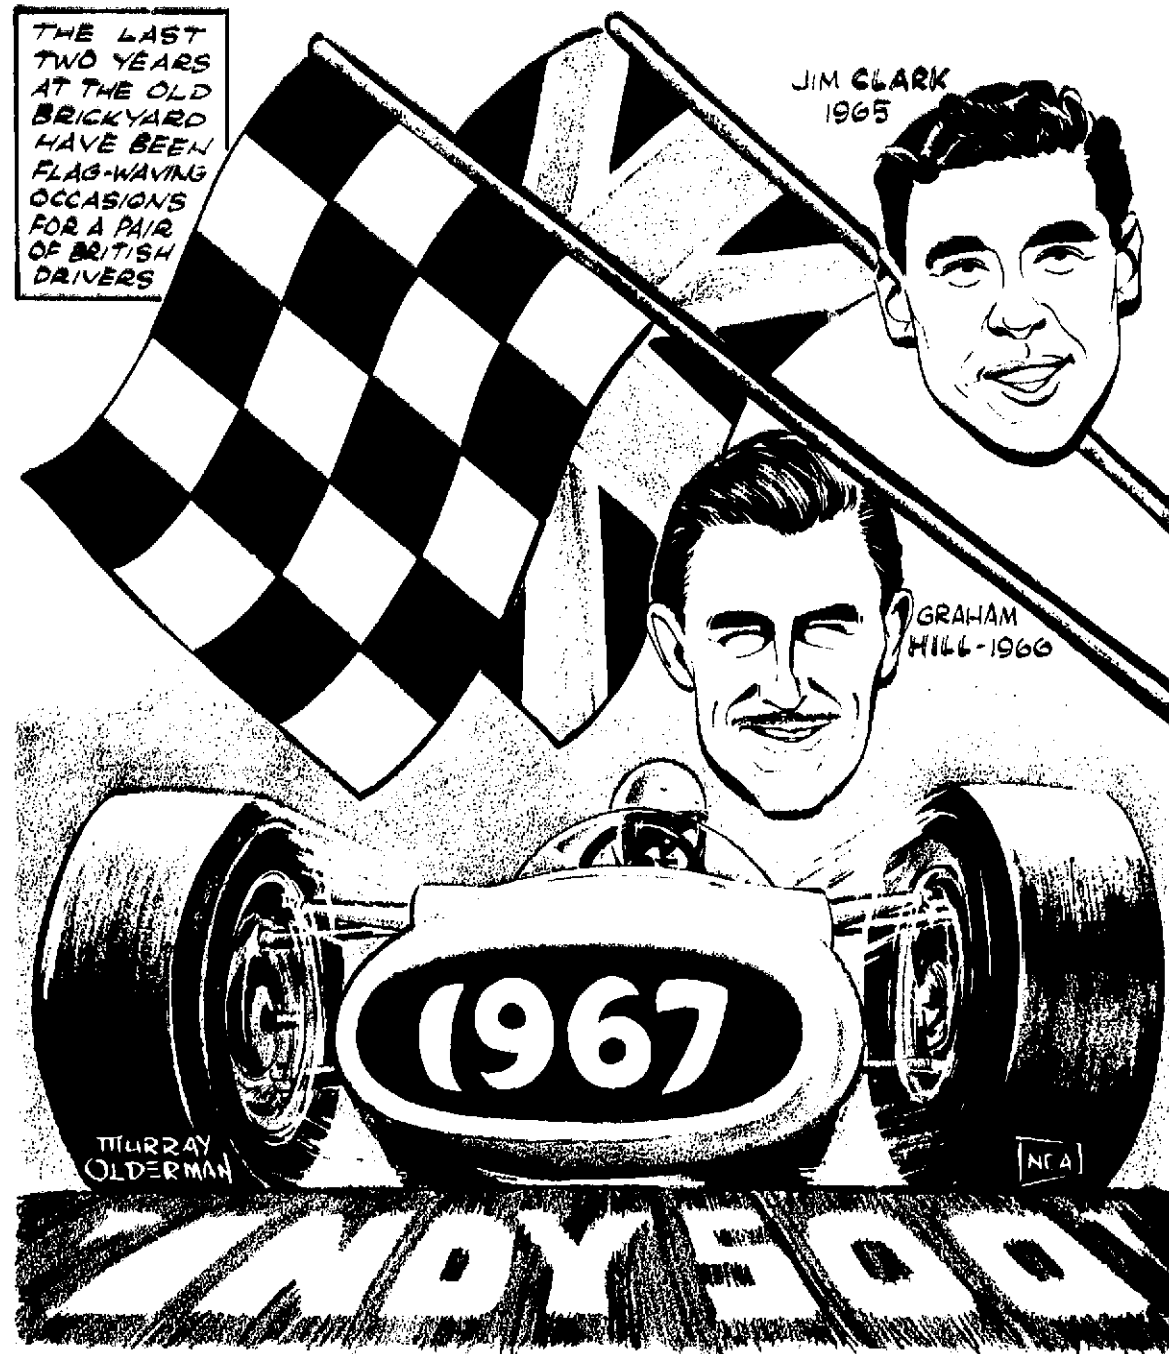

For those who get their kicks from machines rather than men, this year's excitement is the turbine-powered car driven by Parnelli Jones, the 1963 winner in an old-fashioned (sic) Offenhauser. It's a sidewinder, with Parnelli lined up alongside the engine, that goes swoosh instead of adding to the deafening roar usually associated with Indy, and is supposed to be capable of generating tremendous power.

Matter of fact, its problem is that the power has outstripped the rest of the car, and so far they're on their sixth gear box, with most skeptics predicting the car won't last the 500 miles.

For an idea of the investment involved, it takes at least $100,000 to put a car on the track and in running condition at 11 a.m. Memorial Day.

That's generally more than the initial outlay for a thoroughbred at the Kentucky Derby, too.

Pete Keeps Coming Back — Like a Song

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. — (NEA) — Pete DePaolo is 70 now, an age at which most goals either have been realized or pathetically shattered.

It has all turned out well for Pete. He has his health and a couple of homes in Dearborn, Mich., and Newport Beach, Calif.

Now there's only one real goal left. "I told Tony Hulman (president of the Indianapolis Speedway) that eight years from now I'm going to be at Indianapolis for the golden anniversary of my win in the 500," Pete said. "All I want to do is drive the pace car and then sing 'Back Home in Indiana'."

Pete DePaolo's victory came in 1925 and always will be remembered because he was the first driver to shatter the 100-mile-per-hour mark in the 500.

Old-timers around the speedway still remember that day when Pete had to use his relief driver, Norman Batten, for 21 laps so he could take time out to have his blistered and bleeding hands bandaged. Then he climbed back into his yellow and black Dusen-berg and crossed the finish line with an average speed of 101.13 m.p.h.

To Indianapolis, it was like the day Lindbergh crossed the Atlantic and the day Roger Bannister broke the four-minute mile.

"At that time," Pete said, "100 m.p.h. was unheard of. Now this year," he continued, hesitating for a moment to shake his head unbelievably, "Mario Andretti is on the pole with 168.982 miles per hour. It's fantastic."

The Indianapolis 500 is a major part of Pete DePaolo's life, as well as his family's. His uncle, Ralph De Palma, won the race in 1915 and a few years later gave Pete his start in racing. Pete didn't disappoint the family.

"My first race was at the Beverly Hills Speedway," Pete said. "The entrance to the speedway is the front door of the Beverly Wilshire Hotel now. In those days, Wilshire Boulevard was nothing but a bunch of beanfields. "That was a long time ago ...

"I still come back to Indianapolis every May. I haven't missed a race since 1920. I wait for it every year."

Indianapolis — and the racing fraternity — also waits for Pete. "It's amazing," he said. "No matter where I go, everyone remembers that I was the first driver to break 100 miles an hour. It almost seems that it has more significance today than it did then."

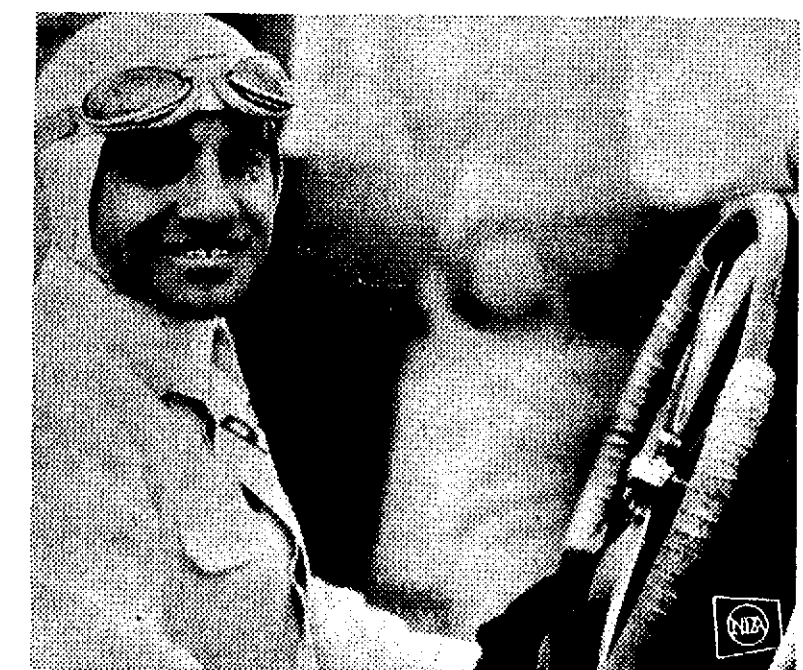

Eight years from now, it will have even more significance.

"I'm not kidding about singing when I come back for 1975," he said. "I've got a good voice. When I was a kid in Roseland, N.J., the mayor heard me in the church choir and told my mother he would pay to send me to Italy to study opera at La Scala."

"But the war came along. I went into the Air Force as a mechanic, then after it was over, joined my uncle Ralph as his mechanic. A few years later, I was driving myself."

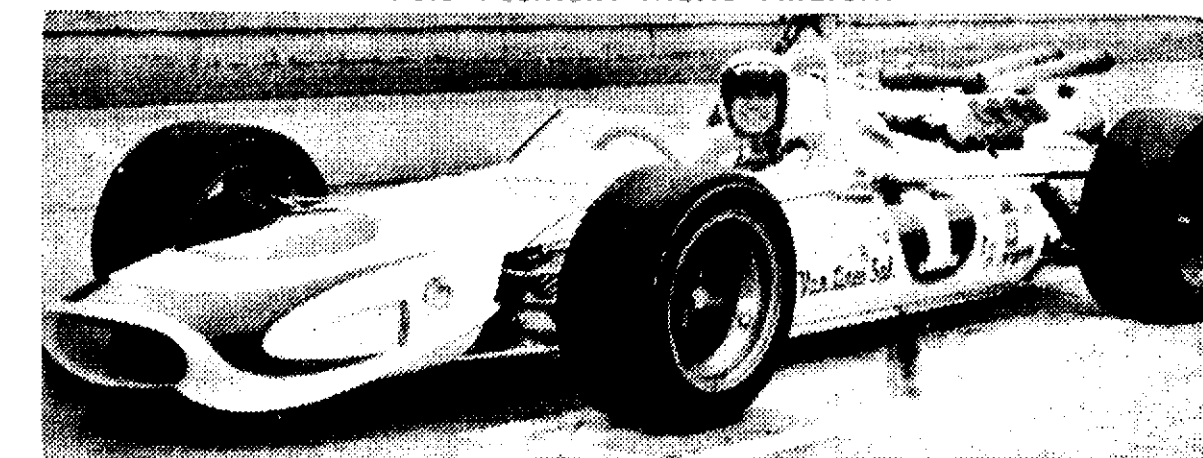

So opera fans never heard Pete DePaolo's "La Boheme."

Indianapolis, however, will hear his "Back Home in Indiana" on Memorial Day 1975.

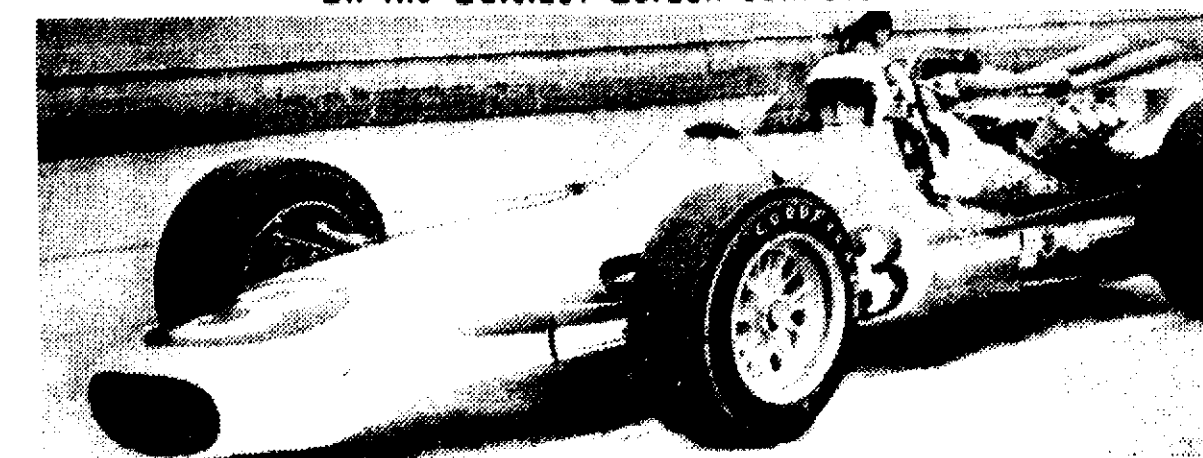

RECORD BREAKER Peter DePaolo will be remembered in Indianapolis 500 history as the man who cracked the 100-miles-per-hour barrier. He did it in 1925, the year he won the race.

Pole Position: Mario Andretti

On the Outside: Gordon Johncock

Mario Andretti esting speculation that Hill and Clark, both trained in Grand Prix road racing, brought greater driving skill to the Indy race — sometimes called one continuous left-hand turn — than their American contemporaries.

"Not so," demurs Chris Economaki, the editor-publisher of National Speed Sport News. "The last three years the man with the better car won. The schooling in Europe is to build the best car, to out-equip the opposition rather than outpace them. Two years ago, Clark's Lotus was clearly superior to any other car in the race. For one thing, it was several hundred pounds lighter."

"Now American builders have caught up. Mario Andretti's car is superior to the others around."

Andretti is the little Italian-born hotrod from Nazareth, Pa., who wheeled his Ford-powered, brawnier-built special around the two-and-a-half mile track at an average lap speed of 168.982 m.p.h. to win the coveted pole position in this year's race.

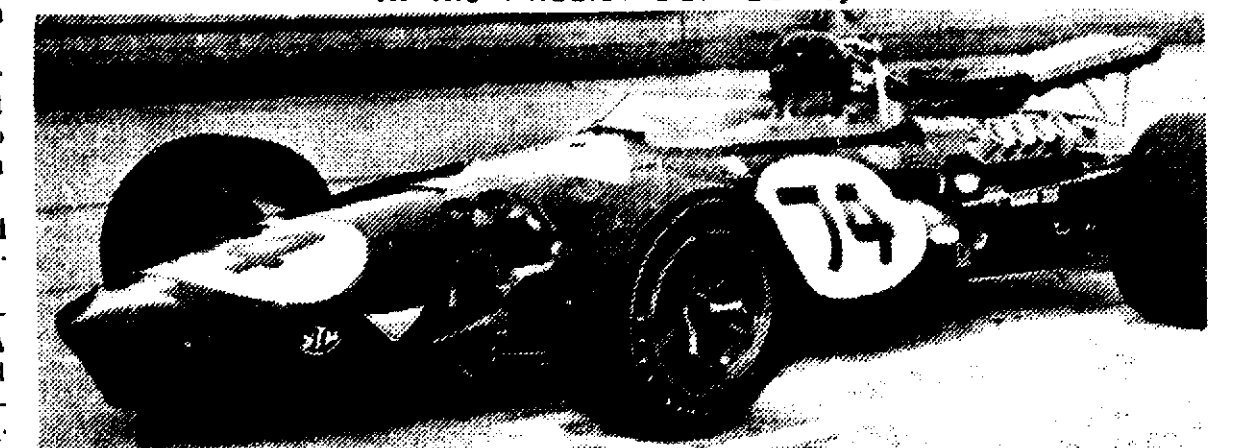

"The race is again becoming a man's race," continues Economaki. "Of the first 25 qualifiers this year — for the SYDNEY, Australia (AP) — Dame Pattie, Australia's challenger for the America's Cup, was hoisted aboard the freighter, Cap Ortegai, today for shipment to New York where she is due June 25.

Most of the crewmen are flying to New York next month and they hope to have the 12-meter yacht sailing off Newport, R.I., around mid-July. This would give them eight weeks to work out before the first race Sept. 12, against America's defender, still to be named.

Oldfield 0-3 at Indy

It may interest you to know that the great Barney Oldfield, synonymous for early auto speed, never won an Indianapolis 500, though he tried three times ... and, in fact, never finished higher than fifth. Eddie Rickenbacker, another old speed devil who later owned the track, competed in five races at Indy, never finishing better than 10th. ...

Scotland's Jackie Stewart, who might have won last year if his engine hadn't conked out after 191 laps, says that the success formula at Indy is 35 per cent driver, 65 per cent car ... but the ratio's reversed in road racing. ...

Mickey Mantle's memories of the many homers he has hit are condensed in one big haze — all except for the first. "It was against Randy Gumpert in Chicago," he recalled, "maybe about the 20th game of the season. I hit a screwball, batting left-handed, and it went up over our own bullpen in rightfield, into the bleachers." The other thing he remembers is that Frank Crosetti, the third base coach, didn't shake his hand — on that or any other homers he hit until he reached No. 500. ...

You can bet that Dick Gordon, the split end for the Chicago Bears, will be the next receiver to follow Mike Ditka off the roster after his recent blast about the Bear coaching setup. ...

Moe Drabowsky is getting a little bugged about being reminded that he has never lost a game for the Baltimore Orioles. The relief star of last year's World Series figures the percentages will catch up with him, and Moe knows all about percentages. He's a successful stock broker himself during the off season, dabbles in the market for personal gain during the season and is putting all that knowledge to use. He never got his degree from Trinity College because he didn't write a thesis, so he's composing one now. Subject: The Monthly Investment Plan. ...

It's surprising that the Cleveland Indians feel no team tension over Rocky Colavito's public blast about the unfairness of being platooned. They regard it as a matter between Rocky and the team's bosses. ...

What puzzles Colavito about his new status as a part-time outfielder after 11 big years in the majors — he has averaged better than 30 home runs and almost 100 runs batted in per season — is there has been no slowdown in him physically. "I mean," he grins, "I didn't have any speed to lose in the first place, and I have a lot more agility now. And I feel I have three or four good seasons in me yet." ...

The mark of success: Joe Garagiola, who found it was easier to talk with his mouth than with a bat, now drives a Rolls Royce convertible to his job as telecaster at Yankee Stadium ... with the license plate simply lettered, "J-O-E". ...

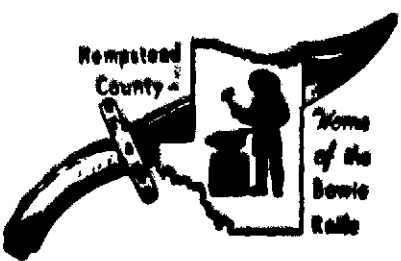

Light-heavyweight champ Dick Tiger doesn't let the current unrest in his native Nigeria intrude on his fight concentration, though much of his money is wrapped up in property in Lagos, where he's currently persona non grata.

The Indians may not fare well artistically, but they lead the American League in strikeouts. Prime specimens — pitchers Steve Hargan and Sam McDowell. ...

Between you'n me, if they took away the Akron support, the Indianapolis 500 might revert to the Model A era. It's estimated that 60 per cent of the money put up to get cars in the race (the 33 entries probably involved an outlay of $3 million) is put up by the tire companies. ...

A Tribute To Power

Within less than a year, New York City's newspaper population has been reduced - from six to three. While the number of factors have contributed to the mortality, the chief is union greed and power. The World Journal Tribune, which closed permanently last May, was born of union strife. For years of costly strikes and settlements, three of the major papers merged out of operation. As the World Journal Tribune, the merger was effected a year ago April, but continued labor trouble prevented publication until September. Now, eight months later, it's gone.

The latest casualty didn't even require a strike, although one was threatened. It was yet another expensive settlement, reached by New York Typographical Union No. 6 with the Daily News, which precipitated the closing; the proprietors of the World Journal Tribune realized they could not match it, as the unions (New York newspaper publishers must deal with no less than 10) would demand.

The unions were hardly ignorant of the financial bind. At first glance their insistence on excessive contract packages looks like a suicidal drive, so wanting to destroy so many jobs, including many of their own members. But of course the explanation is that some union leaders are union and personal power above the welfare of the members.

No one in this business can feel anything but sorrow at such a fate. Its ramifications are broader, though, for the kind of union irresponsibility on view in New York is repeated in union after union in industry after industry throughout the country. The lords of labor may think they're being clever; the public is getting sick of paying so heavy a tribute to power. —Wall Street Journal

Information Freedom

July 4th is a little way off, but perhaps not too far in the distance to remind you that you will be celebrating the birth of another freedom that day. Public Law 89-487, better known as the Freedom of Information Act, becomes effective that day.

It promises to have a major impact on the public's right to see documents and publications of the federal government - virtually everything but that classified for security reasons. Under the new law a person denied information can seek a court order to force the agency to provide it, and the burden of proving the legitimacy of the denial rests with the federal agency. A good law. We should have had it long ago. —Orlando (Fla.) Sentinel

Highway Dept. Buying Plane

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The State Highway Department has accepted a $194,445 bid from Little Rock Air Motive, Inc. for an eight-passenger, twin-engine cargo Commander that will replace a twin-engine Beechcraft commandeered by the department as too obsolete to keep in repair.

BJ Asks for Campaign Financing

By JOE HALL
WASHINGTON (AP) — Congress plans to explore promptly President Johnson's new proposals for public financing of election campaigns but chances of enactment this session appear slight. Johnson strongly endorsed government subsidies for major expenses in presidential election campaigns in a broad action reform message sent to Capitol Hill Thursday. He suggested the principle might well be extended to congressional campaigns, concluding: "I believe that our ultimate goal should be to finance the total expense for this vital election of our democracy with public funds, and to prohibit the acceptance of money from private sources."

World Solo Finished in 255 Days

PLYMOUTH, England (AP) — Sir Francis Chichester will finish his solo 28,000-mile voyage around the world Sunday — 255 days after he started — if the winds and busy English sea traffic let him keep up his present speed.

Two Royal Air Force planes searched 20,000 square miles of ocean and found Chichester's 53-foot yacht Gipsy Moth IV 385 miles from Plymouth Thursday night, making about seven knots — eight miles an hour — through long Atlantic swells.

The 65-year-old yachtsman, who set out last Aug. 27, looked fit and well. He waved to the planes and they dropped a bright red canister containing the message: "The Royal Air Force welcomes you, Sir Francis."

Chichester this morning was sighted about 230 miles off the southwest tip of England.

You Better Believe Little Things Make Life Worth Living

By HAL BOYLE

The humming of a wife, happy in her kitchen.
Beating the boss at gin rummy.

Opening a door and finding on the other side someone you long have wanted to see.

A letter from an old mother saying that everyone back home is doing fine — and so is her flower garden.

Wants Raises for Medical Employees

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Lower-echelon employees at the University of Arkansas Medical Center are being paid less than $2,500 a year despite the fact that the state legislature authorized higher salaries, state Rep. Paul Meers said Thursday.

It's a disgrace for the state to pay wages below the poverty level while spending thousands of dollars on poverty programs, he declared.

Meers said that he would ask Gov. Winthrop Rockefeller to propose a solution to the problem if the governor calls a special session early next year.

Meers said he was considering legislation that would require state institutions to pay the maximum salaries authorized by the legislature after an employee had been at work for 90 days.

Storm Whaley, vice president for health sciences at the university, said lower-echelon employees had received raises Feb. 1 and March 1 to comply with the federal Minimum Wage Law, and that additional raises were coming up in July 1967 and February 1968.

The lowest salary paid after July 1 will be $2,208 a year, he said.

As extensive — or expensive as you feared.

The relief at learning that an operation of a long-time friend discovered no malignancy.

The unutterable sensation of eating a plate of fried eggs, country ham, beaten biscuits and cream gravy after ending a long diet.

Dunking your flushed face in a cold spring during a long hot climb up a mountain in Colorado, Wyoming or Montana.

Standing under a waterfall, and imagining that it is washing away every guilt you've known since you punched the snoozy nose of the jeering 5-year-old young lady who beat you at hop scotch in kindergarten.

Trial Boils Down to Intent, Ethics

By DON MCKEE
COLUMBIA, S.C. (AP) — Capt. Howard B. Levy's court-martial on charges of disobeying an order and promoting disloyalty boiled down today to questions of intent and ethics. Testimony of "war crimes" has been ruled out as a defense.

Member military court summoned back into a stuffy, crowded frame building at Ft. Jackson to hear more testimony after Col. Earl V. Brown, the judge, rejected the key defense move.

Levy, 30, a dermatologist from Brooklyn, N.Y., refused to carry out an order to set up a training program for U. S. Special Forces medics. His attorneys sought to prove the order was illegal because, they said, the combat-trained medics committed "war crimes."

"While there had been perhaps instances of needless brutality in Vietnam," Brown said Thursday, "My conclusion is that no evidence was presented that would make the order illegal on the ground that U. S. forces are engaged in war crimes or crimes against humanity."

Brown said the testimony produced by defense witnesses, who told of atrocities by South Vietnamese, might be considered in setting a lesser sentence if Levy is convicted.

Levy could receive up to 11 years imprisonment.

The Army prosecutor, Capt. Richard M. Shusterman, said the principal issues remaining were intent, ethics and the motive for the order itself.

The court must decide if Levy's statements in opposition to the war, including a letter to a soldier, were designed to promote disloyalty among U. S. troops.

Levy contends that the order to train the soldiers who had no medical background would violate his professional ethics.

Chief defense counsel, Charles B. Morgan Jr. of the American Civil Liberties Union, gave no indication of what track he might take in view of Brown's decision.

Group Places Negro on Police List

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — The State Police Commission placed on its eligibility list Thursday the name of Marion Taylor Jr., a Negro currently serving on the Little Rock police force.

He may become the first member of his race to be hired as a state trooper.

Col. Herman Lindsey, director of the State Police, said earlier this week that the department was moving toward the employment of Negro troopers as of July 1.

The commission approved 43 promotions Thursday.

Capt. Kenneth McKee and Bill Miller were promoted to majors, and Lts. Gene Donham, Ernest Beall and Harold Bell were promoted to captains.

The commission also voted to merge the Freeway Patrol Division with the Highway Patrol Division and authorized bids on a four-passenger Cessna Skylite airplane that will be used to move men to strategic locations.

Leathernecks Battle for Hill 117

SATON (AP) — U. S. Marines and North Vietnamese troops were locked in a fierce fight for Hill 117 today just inside the demilitarized zone near Con Thien.

The Leathernecks were reported to have gained a foothold atop the peak after two days of battle.

The Marines announced Friday they had killed at least 100 Reds in the battle for the hill, with 14 American killed and 102 wounded.

South of Da Nang, a battalion of Marines — about 1,000 men — were in heavy contact with a contingent of Communist soldiers of equal strength. First reports said the Leathernecks killed 141 enemy while taking losses of 28 killed and wounded.

At the end of a bloody fight in the central highlands, the U. S. Command reported 92 North Vietnamese dead, against 10 Americans killed and 54 wounded. A U. S. company had been ambushed in the action but regrouped its forces. It caught about 50 North Vietnamese wearing red berets in the open and wiped them out with machine-gun and automatic weapons fire.

In clearing weather Friday, carrier-based Navy planes bombed the Kep airfield a MIG base, 37 miles northeast of Hanoi. Pilots reported secondary explosions in walled-in areas where three MIGs were parked.

Another MIG base, the Hoa Lac airfield 20 miles west of Hanoi was the target for Air Force bombers Friday. Pilots reported smoke billowed as they left and they believe they may have hit an ammunition storage area.

In another raid, Air Force bombers hit a surface-to-air missile training base 40 miles north of Hanoi. Six buildings were reported damaged or destroyed.

Ford Thinks School Bill Favors State

LITTLE ROCK (AP) — Arkansas will receive several million dollars in additional federal aid to education under the terms of an amendment to President Johnson's elementary and secondary education bill, state Education Commissioner Arch Ford said Thursday.

The amendment altered the formula for distributing funds under Title I of the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965.

U. S. Rep. Sam Gibbons, D-Fla., tacked it onto the Johnson bill, which passed the House 230-188 Wednesday and now goes to the Senate.

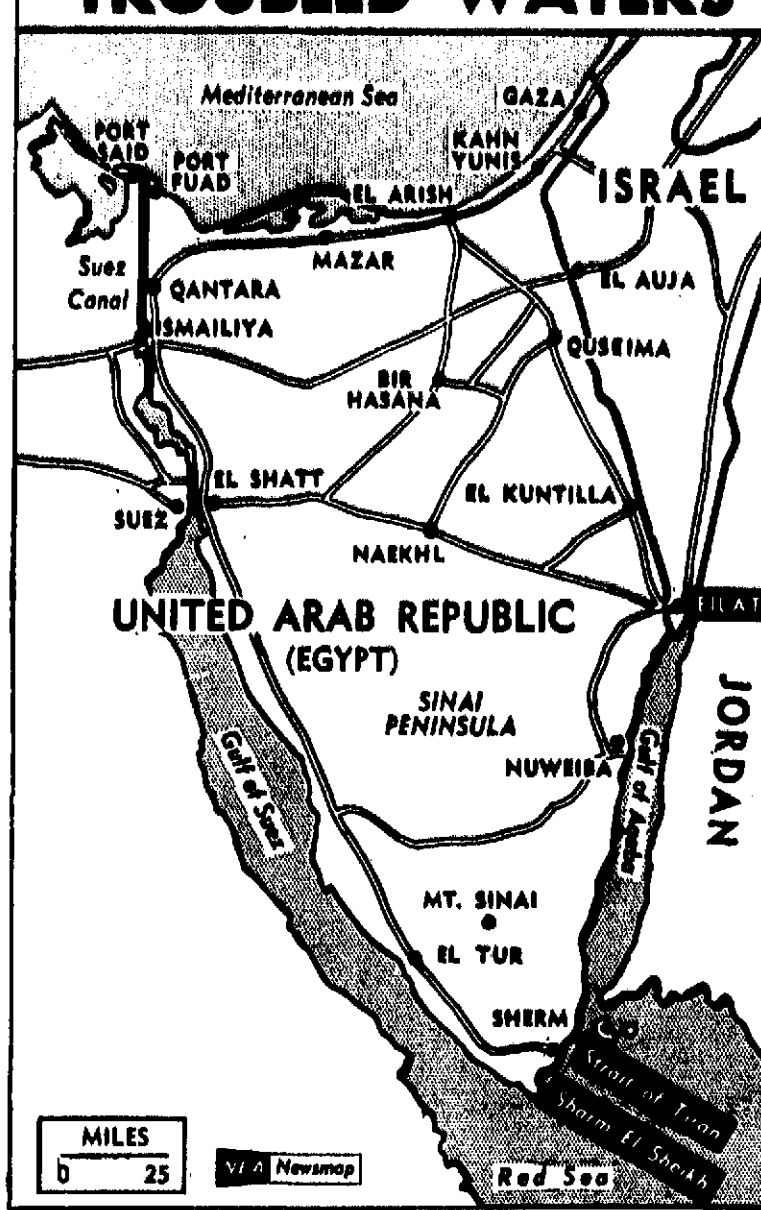

The Gibbons amendment favors Arkansas and more than 30 other "poor" states which have limited financial resources, Ford said.

Industrial Problems of Others Are a Challenge to Them

By MARY ANITA LAETER
Star Feature Writer

Problems of others are sometimes unwelcome and certainly rarely sought after, but Tolber Corporation of Hope thrives on seeking and finding solutions to industrial problems of many kinds.

Tolber manufactures a coating for protective surfaces and those surfaces range from shaving lotion bottles to the inside of tank cars. The average citizen either takes for granted or never thinks about protection for such things. For instance, does the protective coating for the part of the Empire State Building that is underground interest you? It does the folks at Tolber.

As you have probably concluded, each special problem requires a special coating, and it's the job of Tolber to make the right one for each specialized situation. One time they may be working on shoe soles; another time, reflectors for highway signs; still another, refrigerator cord insulation. In short, wherever a need for a chemical coating of protective surfaces arises, Tolber is anxious to meet that need.

The corporation was begun in Hope three years ago under General Manager Clyde Fouse, a native of Pennsylvania who received his degree as a metallurgical engineer from the University of Virginia. For 10 years he worked in the steel industry, and in the mid-1940's he joined the Michigan Chrome and Chemical Company of Detroit. Though it is independent of the Detroit concern, Tolber is an outgrowth of it.

There is no one named Tolber in the corporation. Rather, the name was formed from Tolleson and Huber, the names of the company president and his wife, Mrs. Huber, the former Polly Tolleson, is a native of Hope, and she was the probable influence for putting the newer expansion of the business in her home town.

Unlike many manufacturing concerns, the biggest asset of The Tolber Corporation is not its employees. Their importance is great but not their number. Twenty-two per cent of the Tolber operation is geared to research and development. Research into industrial problems and developing answers to those problems.

"We live in a wonderful time" is often heard when a housewife opens ready-to-serve food or a purchase is made of synthetic fabric or pictures are developed while still in the camera. These and countless other everyday occurrences are made possible through the world of chemistry and related fields. These are things we recognize as advancements, regardless of who wears them.

The idea of practically coating the modern world found its birth in the paint industry, received rapid adolescent growth during World War II, and is reaching full maturity at the present time.

Tolber is the only plant of its kind in the area, and its latest problem - solving search deals with an industry well-known in Southwest Arkansas and, indeed, throughout the state. That is the chicken industry. It seems that galvanized wire for chicken coops has been wanted and Tolber is seeking the best solution to the problem. But then, search-and-find is a habit with Tolber.

Greek Regime Releases 270 Prisoners

ATHENS (AP) — The Greek military regime announced today it has released 270 political prisoners rounded up as known leftists in the early hours of the April 21 coup.

This was the second group to be set free in the last 10 days from the southeastern Aegean prison island of Yfourea, where about 6,000 persons are being held. About 250 were released May 17.

A government announcement said the released prisoners were brought to the Greek mainland by a navy landing craft and sent home late Thursday night.

Special security committees are reviewing individual cases on the island, and the total of released prisoners is expected to reach 3,500 by the end of next week.

Miss Buck to Open Center for Children

SEOUL, South Korea (AP) — Novelist Pearl Buck arrived in Seoul today to open a center to educate 3,000 children of mixed Korean and American parentage and help their mothers find jobs and security.

The 74-year-old author said she would select a site for the center and attend the groundbreaking ceremony during her three-week stay in Seoul.

She told newsmen she plans to establish similar centers costing more than a million dollars for children of mixed blood in Japan, Okinawa, Formosa, the Philippines, Thailand and South Vietnam.

U.S. Blamed for Middle East Crisis

BEIRUT, Lebanon (AP) — The Middle East crisis has made the United States the arch villain in Syria and Egypt. Cairo Radio says the United States completely skids with Israel — is planning to attack Syria and cannot be trusted. It declares the fight is really with the United States and Israel is "an insignificant and worthless state."

Damascus Radio, besides assailing the United States, takes out after the U. S. 6th Fleet in the Mediterranean. A current broadcast boasts, "We shall triumph and let the Zionists and the 6th Fleet go to hell."

The American position in the crisis also has embarrassed the monarchies of Saudi Arabia and Jordan, which have been under attack by Cairo radio for their pro-Western stance.

In the current crisis, Saudi Arabia and Jordan have lined up with other Arab countries against Israel, apparently with some misgivings.

While the United States is reviled, the Soviet Union and even France which with Britain attacked Egypt in 1956 — bask in a glow of Arab friendship.

The Soviet Union received warm praise for its careful statement of support for the Arabs and inflicting on Western nations what Cairo called "their greatest defeat in the U. N. Security Council."

This was a reference to Soviet opposition to any action by the council and its noncommittal position on Big Four talks in the crisis.

Women May Become Ministers Now

EDINBURGH, Scotland (AP) — Women aspiring to be ministers in the Presbyterian Church of Scotland may get to the pulpit if the church's General Assembly follows through on a preliminary favorable vote.

Humphrey Thankful for Good Health

By ROBERT E. GEIGER
WASHINGTON (AP) — Just two days away from turning 56, Vice President Hubert H. Humphrey says he's happy in his job, thankful for his good health and optimistic about the world's future.

Humphrey summoned reporters to an impromptu news conference Thursday in his Capitol Hill office and described his personal creed as:

"You always have to do what's right, regardless of whether people like it or not. That's what counts."

The vice president, pink-cheeked and bouncy as ever, said he feels as young and energetic as he did 10 years ago. His greatest personal desire, he said, is to be in as good health at age 57 as he is now.

"I'm a happy guy and I don't have any personal frustrations," he said, then added: "But in public life I'd like to see things get done faster" in the field of social legislation.

Responding to questions, Humphrey said there's increasing support among Americans for the Johnson administration's Vietnam policies.

"On Vietnam I have the feeling there now is less emotion and a little more of the attitude of 'here it is, here's what we have to deal with,'" said Humphrey. "The heat is going out of the issue."

Humphrey also spoke of rising public popularity for President Johnson. He said Johnson's popularity hit a low last December, "But now I can see he's gaining."

Part of the trend reversal is attributable, said Humphrey, to the President's "extraordinarily frank and candid" approach.

Summing up his job, Humphrey said: "If I were an inactive vice president, that would be frustration." But he said "The President fully understands my feelings" and "he's given me a number of things to do that I really wanted to do."

"Best of all," he added, "I've got a fine, lovely wife and family and we have a lot of happiness."
